Online Job Site Eases Holiday Stress

San Antonio, TX December 10, 2007 – The season of giving has a lot of people receiving a high amount of stress. As the holidays quickly approach, WeDoOddJobs.com is eliminating frustration with an online job posting and searching site that helps people get jobs done before out-of-town guests arrive, and helps others make some extra money to afford holiday gifts. Ambrose Turkson, Jr., founder of WeDoOddJobs.com, says the best way to stave holiday stress is to start planning early.

“The holiday season has a way of sneaking up on all of us; so when we realize we have so many little tasks that need to be completed before company arrives, or even before we can start decorating, it’s nice to have a place to post your jobs online and then find someone to immediately help,” Turkson said. “In turn, those who want to be hired for these jobs can increase their income, which is especially helpful during this time of year.”

WeDoOddJobs.com, the only online site that matches odd jobs providers with job seekers nationwide, lists jobs in a variety of areas from basic maintenance and repair needs to household cleaning, organization and even putting up the outside lights and holiday decorations. Since the holiday season is usually very busy for most people, Turkson says it is a good idea to begin posting jobs and looking for jobs as soon as you can. Because the site is free to job providers (and only charges a nominal fee to job seekers who want instant alerts and info on hirers) and is available around the clock, there is no need to wade through the phone book or wait for business hours to begin.

Turkson says as the holiday season goes on, there is a higher chance people will realize they neglected to take care of certain things, and there are going to be those in the area who want to earn some additional cash.

“Our ultimate goal during the holidays is to help people have a great time. We believe that with our site, everyone can relieve not only physical or time-related stress, but financial burdens, too,” Turkson said. “Being proactive now will allow things to be less hectic and more enjoyable.”

WeDoOddJobs.com offers complete, nationwide job matching services for hirers and job seekers, and does not require subscribers to sign contracts. Users can post and search jobs in a variety of areas, including: carpentry, construction, handy-work, hauling, organization, homework, housecleaning, lawn service, light duty, personal errands, real estate, strong man work, and technology.
